- B) It now seems that modern science is increasingly being used in the service of this traditional prejudice
- C) In the 1990s, the total population of India rose by 21 percent to 1,03 billion
- D) In 1961, there were 976 girls for every one boy's age six and under in India
- E) In southwestern Delhi, one at India's richest districts, the girl boy ratio declined in the 1 990s to a shocking 845 girls for every 1000 boys

65. Of all the phases of the history of art that of ancient America remains the most mysterious and the least accessible. ----. Comparatively very few examples of this art are available to the public and none of these is of monumental size. Indeed, who le aspects of this art are unknown. This is because the objects have perished or because they were destroyed by the Spanish conquerors.

- A) Obviously, the Mayans were a notably intellectual people, possessing elaborate religion and exact calendar system.
- B) The historical developm ent of the pre-Columbian cultures of America is still very obscure.
- C) It is now generally accepted that man first entered America by way of the Bering Straits from north-east Asia.
- D) The natives of what is now Peru were apparently capable of science, but not of philosophy.
- E) One might further add that it is the least appreciated of them all.

66. Few regions are less the master of their own destinies than southeast Asia. ----. Indeed, the region includes some of the world's most trade dependent countries All went well in the early 1990's, but not after 1997.

- A) Nevertheless, China has stepped up her imports and many of them are from southeast Asia.
- B) Sars added its malign influence in 2003.
- C) Moreover, China has enjoyed a huge store of foreign direct investment, thus starving the southeastern economies of fresh capital
- D) This is because their economies are highly sensitive to investment flows and the demand for manufactured goods from far away.
- E) However, there is an increased demand for memory chips in which southeast Asia specializes.

67. Putting on a Broadway show is one of the biggest gambles in America's entertainment industry, with investments running into millions of dollars. ----. Since only one out of five shows manages that, there is no financial security.

- A) It can take at least two years for a successful show to pay back its original investment
- B) Indeed, a musical can cost around 10 million to put on
- C) Consequently, producers are becoming more creative with their fundraising schemes
- D) The New York stage is now looking to advertising as a means of funding its productions
- E) Sponsorship would seem to be another obvious solution to the problem

68. For years environmentalists have warned against imminent food shortages, spreading pollution, accelerating climate change and the early exhaustion of the world's oil and other minerals. ----. Now, however, there are dare predictions of water shortages in many countries. Even some experts claim that wars of the future will be fought over water, not oil.

- A) Certainly, dams will cause more argument than ever, with China's three giant dams already filling up.
- B) On the other hand, powerful rural farmers can afford to pump out free groundwater or to lobby for big dams that will yield irrigation benefits.
- C) But, until recently they have overlooked the most essential substance of all: water
- D) Fortunately, there are usually cheaper and better ways of storing water, delivering irrigation and protecting against floods.
- E) In fact, rich households have access to piped water from municipal utilities, whereas the poor have to pay door to door water vendors.

69. Though half the world's Muslims live in electoral democracies, only eight of the forty-six Muslim-majority countries are electoral democracies. This has made some political scientists wonder if Islam is antithetical to democracy. ----. They needn't have wondered. In 1974, more than seventy percent of states that had Catholic majorities were not electoral democracies, but today about eight percent of such states are.

- A) In fact, from 1989 to 1996 forty-nine nations were added to the tally of electoral democracies.
- B) Many of the regimes that have become electoral democracies over the past fifteen years cannot properly be called liberal democracies.
- C) Even after the great strides towards freedom of democratic countries, the target is such growth over any comparable period of history.
- D) The Soviet collapse increased the number of democratic countries, but since most of these states were small, it did not substantially increase the number of free people.
- E) Experts wondered the same thing about Catholicism in the early 1970s.

70. The report did not get a favourable reception largely because it called for massive increases in defence spending.

- A) The unfavourable report on defence spending showed convincingly that vast sums of money had been wasted.
- B) The report failed to please for the obvious reason that it recommended an increase in expenditure for defence purposes.
- C) The extra expenditure for defence purposes is what made the report so unpopular in many quarters.
- D) The main reason why the report met with so little approval was on account of the vast increases in expenditure it demanded for defence purposes.
- E) The report was quite unacceptable on account of the fact that the recommended increases in defence spending were quite unrealistic.

71. More market research on the likelihood of the success of such an item is definitely called for before we invest more time, money or effort in it.

- A) Once market research findings suggest it is likely that this article will sell well, we will definitely start to invest more time, money and effort in it.
- B) A great deal of time, money and effort has already been invested in this particular item, but market research findings are not very positive as to the likelihood of its success.
- C) We really must not invest more time, money or effort in this particular item until market research provides us with more grounds for believing that it will sell.
- D) Unless market research comes up with some really good proof that such an article will market well, we must stop investing so much time, money and energy in it.
- E) We cannot go on investing time, money and energy in a product of this nature while market research findings regarding its selling potentiality are so dubious.

72. In relation to the size of the population, the commerce of the mainland colonies of America at this time was unusually large.

- A) At this period, the commercial activities of the mainland colonies of America were considerable, even though the population was increasingly only slow.
- B) As the population of mainland colonies of America at this time was small, their trading activities were comparatively large.
- C) Considering how small the population of the mainland colonies of America was at this time, the variety of their trading activities was quite surprising.
- D) If the size of the population is taken into consideration, the trading activities of the mainland colonies of America in this period were remarkably extensive.
- E) The commerce of the mainland colonies of America at this time increased as quickly as the population increased.

73. It was not till the time of Shakespeare that companies of players emerged who made the stage their profession.

- A) Before the age of Shakespeare companies of professional actors were already beginning to appear.
- B) By Shakespeare's time there were already groups of actors whose theatrical activities were conducted on professional lines.
- C) The actors of Shakespeare's time were professionals and organized themselves into companies.
- D) By the age of Shakespeare, acting had become a profession and the players were grouped into various companies.
- E) Companies of players who made a profession of acting came into being for the first time in the age of Shakespeare.

74. If the others had taken sensible precautions like we did, this tragedy need never have happened.

- A) Their tiresome behavior meant that we were all inevitably involved in the tragedy.
- B) If they had not behaved so foolishly, they would not have involved us, either, in this tragedy.
- C) The tragedy is that this could have been avoided if only they had all controlled their emotions.
- D) This tragic result could have been avoided, but, unlike us, the rest of them behaved rashly.
- E) If only they would follow our example and behave in a reasonable manner, all this suffering could be avoided.

75. The harnessing of the wind to generate electricity dates back to 1890, but few notable advances were made until 1970 when energy prices began to rise fast.

- A) In 1890 a few efforts were made to produce electricity from wind power, but it was only in 1970 when energy prices rose steeply that such a scheme was taken seriously.
- B) In 1970, when there was a sudden increase in energy prices, efforts were made to harness the power of the wind for the generation of electricity for the first time since 1890.
- C) It was in 1890 that the wind was first used to generate electricity, but it was only in 1970 when the energy prices started rise sharply that real advances were made.
- D) Between 1890 and 1970 various attempts were made to harness the power of the wind as the rising prices of energy made this desirable.
- E) Impressive advances in the generation of electricity from wind power coincided with rising energy prices in 1970, but the practice actually dates back 10 1890.

One of the greatest natural catastrophes the world will ever see could be little more than a decade away. The film Supervolcano traces the evolution of an enormous volcanic eruption - one that not only wipes out several states of America but that threatens the entire planet. But is such an eruption really possible? Well, supervolcanoes certainly aren't fiction. They're a normal part of the way the Earth works and occur perhaps every 50,000 years. Every statistic associated with a super-eruption is always wildly over-exaggerated. Molten magma is blasted out at a rate 140 times greater than the flow of water over the Victoria Falls. Ash and gas are thrown more than 50km upwards to the edge of space before falling over one percent of the Earth's surface. Enough ash would pile up on the ground to bury Britain under a blanket 4m thick. Further, devastating winds carrying burning gas and red hot ash would scour the land surface over an area of 10,000 square kilometers. Worst of all, a super-eruption is followed by a dramatic fall in global temperatures, leading to years and years of bitter cold known as a volcanic winter.

76. We understand from the passage that the film Supervolcano ----.

- A) gives a convincing and credible account of an imminent super-eruption
- B) has attracted a great deal of attention in the scientific world
- C) has aroused little interest among the general public
- D) focuses on the horrors of a volcanic winter
- E) presents a futuristic account of the effects of a volcanic super-eruption

77. In this dramatic account of the film Supervolcano, the writer ----.

- A) urges the general public to go and see the film
- B) is primarily concerned with the measures needed to contain a super-eruption
- C) essentially deals with the causes of a super- eruption
- D) also includes certain specific details
- E) is obsessed with the idea that the end of the world is very near

78. According to the passage, one of the devastating consequences following a super-eruption would be ----.

- A) the complete destruction of America and Britain
- B) a very long period of excessive cold on earth
- C) that deep layers of volcanic ash would cover the whole surface of the planet
- D) the drying-up of all water sources on earth
- E) a dramatic increase of heat on earth, the result of burning gas

79. The writer seems convinced that ----.

- A) super-eruptions really do occur at long but fairly regular intervals
- B) no part of the US could possibly survive a super- eruption
- C) Britain would be the first region of the planet to be buried under the ashes of a super-erupt on
- D) a volcanic winter, following a super-eruption, would wipe out life on earth
- E) there is no likelihood of a super-eruption happening in the near future

80. According to the passage, the destruction caused by a volcanic super-eruption ----.

- A) could lead to the break-up of the entire planet
- B) could be contained, not prevented
- C) would be on an unimaginably huge scale
- D) would result largely from the flow of molten magma
- E) can only be guessed at as one has never occurred

Family-owned companies are bad for business, a new study argues at least when they dominate a large portion of a country's economy. Outside the United States and Britain most major corporations are in the hands of a few wealthy families, rather than, as in the US and Britain, being owned by a wide network of shareholders. The power of these small families often extends far beyond the companies they own directly, thanks to a system of "control pyramids" in which they exercise indirect control over a large number of smaller companies. This concentration of corporate power doesn't merely leave a high percentage of wealth in the hands of billionaires. It also retards growth, diminishes efficiency, and limits economic freedom. Moreover, "a tiny elite that cannot be sacked," as the study puts it, is likely to pursue "economic entrenchment", in which property rights and financial openness are restricted to protect a few families' economic and political prerogatives or rights.

81. The aim of the passage is to ----.

- A) highlight the different ways in which business is carried on in the US and in Britain
- B) compare small family businesses and large corporations
- C) present the findings of a research project into the nature of large, family-owned corporations
- D) discredit the practices of big business, especially when shareholders are involved
- E) contradict the conclusions of a study into the practices of large, family-owned corporations

82. We understand from the passage that in Britain and the US, the larger companies ----.

- A) are constantly merging to create even larger companies
- B) frequently extend their control over smaller corporations
- C) are characterized by much financial openness
- D) are usually owned by shareholders who may be many in number
- E) are highly competitive and growing fast

83. We learn from the passage that the "control pyramids" ----.

- A) offer smaller companies a much-needed guidance
- B) are in general very beneficial
- C) depict the system of management within a large corporation
- D) characterize all family businesses whether large or small
- E) tend to restrict growth and lower efficiency

84. By the "tiny elite that cannot be sacked" of the passage is meant ----.

- A) families running small businesses at the base of the "control pyramids"
- B) the non-family shareholders
- C) the high-ranking employees of the big corporations
- D) the few billionaire families who own and rule the major corporations
- E) families without economic and political prerogatives

85. It is clear from the passage that a major aim of the big family companies is to ----.

- A) preserve the status quo that is, their own wealth and power
- B) increase their political power and play a role in policy making
- C) make the business world more competitive
- D) reduce the powers of their shareholders
- E) encourage the growth of economic freedom throughout the world

We can only guess when Shakespeare wrote his plays. He may have had his own writing "season" perhaps in the quieter winter months, but he never stopped acting, probably taking two or three minor parts instead of a major one. He seems to have chosen for himself the more static and undemanding roles in his plays, such as old Adam in As You Like It and the Ghost in Hamlet. His audiences included many habitual playgoers, and many must have known Shakespeare and he must have known them. We can imagine, as a recent biographer has said, "that there might have been a complex, subtle communicative exchange when he appeared in one of his own plays". In spring 1613, he purchased his first property in London. He was renting out by 1616, but may originally have entertained other intentions for the property. It would certainly have been a handy place to stay, being near the Globe, which was his theatre. Perhaps the destruction of the Globe in 1613, which probably prompted him to sell his share in the theatre company, altered his plans for it. He may not have given up acting, but his writing career was over by the end of that year. In 1614, he returned to his hometown, Stratford-upon-Avon, and died there in 1616.

86. It is suggested in the passage that, when Shakespeare acted, ----.

- A) he was always assigned the most crucial parts
- B) the audiences were thrilled by his acting
- C) the Globe Theatre was always crowded
- D) he could spare very little time for his writing
- E) the parts he played were mostly easy, unimportant ones

87. It is pointed out in the passage that, though Shakespeare had stopped writing plays by the end of 1613, ----.

- A) it seems likely that he continued to act a little longer
- B) he sometimes revised some of his earlier plays
- C) he wanted to keep his company intact
- D) his company put pressure on him to continue writing
- E) he started again on his return to Stratford-upon-Avon

88. We understand from the passage that there is no evidence ----.

- A) as to what sort of parts Shakespeare played
- B) to suggest that Shakespeare was popular in his day
- C) as to whether or not Shakespeare actually did rent out his property
- D) about when Shakespeare was writing his plays
- E) that the destruction of the Globe had any serious impact on Shakespeare's life

89. It is suggested in the passage that Shakespeare, ----.

- A) as a playwright, preferred tragedies to comedies
- B) as a property owner, got a good income from his rents
- C) as an actor, was often in close contact with his audiences
- D) returned to Stratford-upon-Avon almost as soon as the Globe was destroyed
- E) though he returned to Stratford, very soon regretted leaving London

90. It is clear from the passage that the Globe Theatre ----.

- A) was partly owned by Shakespeare himself
- B) was built on land that Shakespeare had bought
- C) was particularly spacious so as to accommodate large audiences
- D) was the most popular of the London theatres in Shakespeare's time
- E) was designed and built especially for the staging of Shakespeare's plays

The discovery of an ancient tomb in modern China is so commonplace that it often annoys as much as excites, because it can delay construction for months or even years. So when archeologists were called in last May to check structures discovered during the expansion of a bone-meal factory in a southern suburb of Beijing, they weren't expecting to find anything of great interest. To the archeologists' surprise, the structures were the remains of two traditional domed tombs, each over a thousand years old. One was flooded and badly damaged, but the other contained beautifully-preserved wall frescoes from the 10th century. "It's only recently that the Chinese have been publishing artifacts from ancient tombs, and it's unusual to see them in the Western press," says Dr Jessica Rawson, Professor of Oriental Art and Archeology at Oxford University.

91. We learn from the passage that the Chinese ----.

- A) show archeologists a great deal of respect
- B) are very proud of their ancient archeological heritage
- C) are very skilled in the art of frescoes
- D) often have mixed feelings when an ancient tomb is discovered
- E) used to prefer tombs without domes to those with domes

92. It is clear from the passage that in China today the progress of a construction work ----.

- A) is very often hindered by the unexpected discovery of ancient tombs
- B) is frequently supervised by archeologists
- C) is liable to be delayed for a variety of reasons
- D) depends, to a certain extent, on weather conditions
- E) often runs parallel with archeological excavations

93. According to Professor Rawson in the passage, China ----.

- A) has only recently emerged as an area of interest for archeologists
- B) has only just started to publish art objects for the West
- C) is noted for its ancient domed tombs with frescoes
- D) continues to be very secretive about its archeological finds
- E) has the finest frescoes anywhere in the world

94. We understand from the passage that only one of the tombs unearthed during extension work at a factory in Beijing ----.

- A) attracted the attention of Dr Rawson
- B) had a domed roof which was undamaged
- C) could be dated back to the 10th century
- D) revealed frescoes in excellent condition
- E) caused a delay in the Project

95. The passage points out that the archeologists who were called in ----.

- A) were not impressed by the frescoes on the walls of one of the tombs
- B) weren't expecting to discover tombs of such great value in a suburb of Beijing
- C) made ancient tombs their specialty
- D) had published extensively in the western press
- E) were annoyed by the discovery of two ancient tombs in Beijing

We should care about dying languages for the same reason that we care when a species of animal or plant dies. It reduces the diversity of our planet. In the case of language, we are talking about intellectual and cultural diversity, not biological diversity, but the issues are the same. As a result of decades of environmental publicity and activism, most people have come to accept that biodiversity is a good thing. But linguistic diversity has not enjoyed the same publicity. Diversity occupies a central place in evolutionary theory because enables a species to survive in different environments. Increasing uniformity holds dangers for the long-term survival of a species. The strongest ecosystems are those which are most diverse. It has often been said that our success in colonizing the planet can be accounted for by our ability to develop diverse cultures which suit different environments.

96. It is stressed in the passage that biological diversity ----.

- A) is not in any way related to eco-systems
- B) has received far more attention than linguistic diversity
- C) is fast being reduced
- D) contributes very little to the survival of plant and animal species
- E) is richer in northern regions than in southern ones

97. The point is made in the passage that the survival of species in different environments ----.

- A) is of no real importance except to biologists
- B) has been made possible by the continuous efforts of man
- C) has aroused very little interest in the general public
- D) has been made possible by diversity
- E) bears no relation to the survival of languages and cultures.

98. The author draws a strong parallel between ----.

- A) cultural and linguistic diversity
- B) plant and animal species
- C) linguistic and biological diversity
- D) environmental and cultural publicity
- E) the uniformity of ecosystems and that of cultures

99. It is pointed out in the passage that man ----.

- A) has developed diverse cultures which are appropriate for the environment he lives in
- B) has always been very much aware of the benefits of biodiversity
- C) has always valued cultural diversity well above biodiversity
- D) has always found it very hard to adapt himself to any new environment
- E) has always felt that cultural uniformity is desirable

100. According to the writer, diversity on earth ----.

- A) is rapidly becoming reduced owing to lack of public interest in it
- B) consist not only of the diversity of species and plants but also of languages and cultures
- C) has only recent become a research concern among environmentalists
- D) has encouraged man to exploit his environment
- E) can best be maintained through the preservation of different languages
